

Partially bald man #1 with a thinning comb-over has certainly reached his forties.

Persons #2 and #3 appear to be going on thirty.

Person #4 looks somewhat younger, twenty to twenty-five.

Boy #5 must be around fifteen.

Person #4 had his hair recently shaved; the receding hairline is high, following lateral bald patches. Compare to boy #5.

A deep wrinkle marks the forehead, 1cm above the eyebrows.

The eyebrows are dark, thick and meeting.

The nose is slightly aquiline.

A couple of months later in France, with his hair pulled backward, Elie Wiesel displays the full, low hairline peculiar to teenagers.

His nose is straight, the bridge is very slightly curved, inward.
